The Arsenal Cannon

Arsenal Technical High School

Volume 54

Peanuts revel

1968 . . . the year of Peanuts . . .

the year of Charlie Brown sweatshirts, pillows and dolls, the year everyone sang of "Snoopy and the Red Baron".

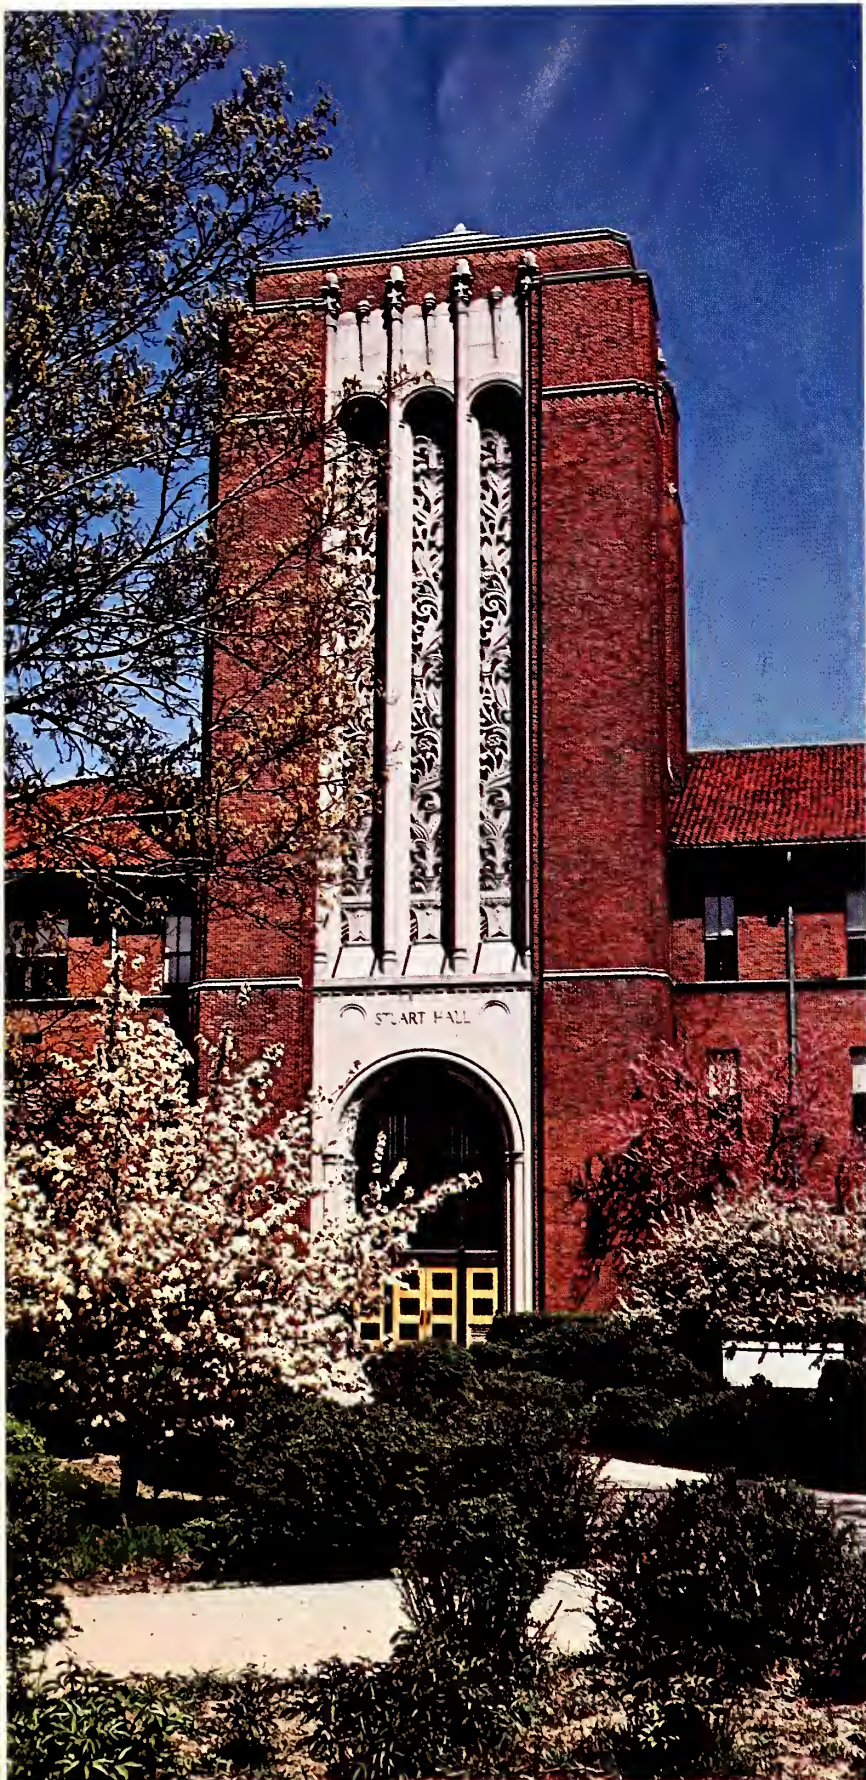

The Peanuts craze swept Broadway and the nation, then the world, with an exhibition in the Louvre.

And Peanuts came to Tech.

They learned that 1968 was the year of the restoration of the Arsenal, of the 10:53 daily sonic boom, and of the North Central Association evaluation.

More important, they watched as 5200 Techites experienced the same fun and frustration of growing up that Tech has seen for fifty-five years.

They saw the Charlie Browns who bounced back from every failure, the self-confident Lucys who knew it all, and the Linuses who still clung to their security blankets.

Beautiful in any season, the Tech campus provides a special wonder-world in springtime. The season of renewal brings forth flowering shrubs and trees, a colorful setting for stately Stuart Tower, a landmark to remember.

in Tech spirit: youth, fun, dedication

The letter from Charles Schulz approving the use of his comic characters, the Peanuts gang, is given full support by Snoopy and Charlie Brown.

Tech Charlie Browns, set active pace

Following a Techite's daily routine, the Peanuts watched him run from the Main to get to the Chemistry Building on time, learn logarithms and sentence construction, make friends, accept defeat and success. They saw "freshmen" drop their lunch trays, seniors complain about bookstore lines and cafeteria food, some Techites swarming to the Gym for an assembly while others were behind the scenes quaking with "nerves." Very important—these people of the year—but also important were the fads and fashions which set this year apart from every other. The Peanuts saw girls in culottes, window-pane stockings and hairpieces, dieting to reach Twiggy proportions and boys wearing Levis and pin-striped shirts.

"Senioritis" often transforms older, more sophisticated Techites into frolicking freshmen like senior Ginny Brand, caught dancing from the Cafeteria.

Top: Anyone for patty-cake? Debbie Kuykendall and Nancy Phelps work off tension during lunch hour with this after-dinner game. The score? Two hits, no errors!

Indulging in their own "extra-curricular" activities, these Techites take final looks before the 8:07 bell.

Students passing through Stuart Hall the first days of school notice the excitement in the air. For those returning there is the fervor of reunion after a summer vacation. Early morning sights and sounds bring back memories of months past. For newcomers there is the feeling of discovery as they dodge traffic to get to class. These are the echoes of Stuart Hall.

The walk running from Treadwell Hall to the Boys Gymnasium is known to Tech pupils as Lilac Lane. These soft lavender and white flowers add a tender touch to the familiar path. The perfumed fragrance can help to carry pupils into spring fever.

Ageless campus is modern, traditional

The most impressive point of Tech and the most frightening for freshmen was the sprawling campus, a maze, a puzzle, a jungle of the unfamiliar.

But as the seasons progressed, the campus became a place of freedom to brighten the Techite's daily schedule.

A dash through a sudden shower, a leisurely stroll on a springtime lunch hour, a cautious slide across campus on winter ice, good and bad . . . four seasons and thirteen buildings spiced life at Tech.

Tech's "mascots," the many tame squirrels and "adopted" dogs join the pupils in the scramble through the park-like campus.

Sunshine and fresh air, with plenty of space in which to enjoy it place Treadwell Hall and the Arsenal in proper perspective for a fall stroll across campus before the bell rings to signal the end of a lunch period.

Arsenal renewal begins second century

One hundred years of dirt and erosion were scraped from the face of the Arsenal Building during the summer of 1967. Crumbling bricks and deteriorated limestone bore the effects of time. The Board of School Commissioners decided to preserve this historic building. An eight-man crew replaced bricks and mortar, sandblasted all masonry surfaces, and sealed the building. The boom of the hammer and bell of the Arsenal clock will signal the final success of the project. With renovation of its three giant faces and its wooden cogs, a fifty-year silence will be broken.

Plans for the restoration had begun as early as 1964. When the Artillery Building, former cafeteria and carpentry shops, was razed, over 20,000 bricks were cleaned and stored for possible use in the Arsenal renewal project. When these were later found to be unsuitable, 8500 new, matching bricks were purchased to restore the Arsenal's original condition.

"Danger" signs marked the area around the Arsenal from May to September while work continued on the $22,000 renovation. Today the Arsenal houses the administrative offices, the Library, the Bookstore, several business classes and the IBM facilities.

Seen through the arched windows of the Arsenal, these workers, part of an eight-man crew, clean bricks in the structure built in 1865 as a Union Army post. Building and Grounds Division employees added the finishing touches on the exterior trim.

heighten enthusiasm, brighten routine

Through its varied extra-curricular program, Tech added fun, friendship and responsibility to the daily routine.

The effort of making a 7:30 a.m. meeting or of staying after school was well rewarded by growth in leadership and cooperation.

Tech's fifty organizations sponsored spelunking expeditions, chess tournaments, speech meets and public service projects. Titans learned more about future vocations through occupational clubs, earned ham radio operators' licenses, became physics experts with a laser beam, gave expression to their dramatic abilities in the all-school plays, cheered at pre-sectional pep rallies, marched in the ROTC Federal Inspection, hammered nails in Mardi Gras booths, made friends, and coped with insurmountable problems—all through Tech's organizations.

Above: Dan Reneau assists in a French class after having acquired an authentic accent, perfected last summer in the I.U. Honors Abroad program. While Dan visited in France, Neita Waldo, below, outstanding Latin pupil, was honored in the same program with a trip to Italy where she studied.

Last summer, Linda Arnett, Anita Belding, Steve Handy, Danny Pride and Donna Blount were chosen for membership in a workshop held at Indiana University. The girls attended Girls' State, and Steve and Danny went to Boys' State, each group for a week. Actual functioning in mock political situations gave them practical experience in government.

Sharon Koehler proudly displays the Freedom's Foundation plaque denoting Tech's consistent record of citations by the organization since 1951 in interpreting the American Way of Life. Sharon and Miss LaVon Whitmire, Tech art teacher, were this year's representatives for the Valley Forge Pilgrimage.

Bright Titans add luster to Tech name

Titans of 1968 excelled in many areas to bring honors to Tech. Participation in speech, music, and athletic contests reaped awards for individual and team efforts.

Honored for past performance, several Techites attended Hoosier Boys' and Girls' State, while achievement on special tests resulted in commendation for some in national scholarship programs.

Tech itself received national recognition as a superior high school and sent Techites across the nation to Philadelphia and Tucson to represent the school at awards programs.

Ain Haas and Linda Herman attained the status of semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Examination.

Queen ignites brilliant Homecoming

Brisk autumn weather caused many Techites to pull their coats closer as they awaited the beginning of Tech's Homecoming Game against Sccecina. When the Titans scored a touchdown in the first fifteen seconds, many anticipated victory for Tech. Even though the Crusaders went on to win with a score of 35-14, the evening wasn't a complete disappointment for Titan fans. Throughout the game Tech's vivacious varsity and reserve cheerleaders led chants of encouragement for the Titan players.

As always during half-time, the band played lively tunes to brighten spirits. Majorettes displayed their talents in a variety of routines.

Crowning the Homecoming queen was the high point of the night.

The court included Jill Armstrong, Jackie Dixon, Linda Hodges, Marlene McCarty and Frankie Peters honoring Queen Patty Taylor. Bright flaming fireworks that soared upward toward the stars added the finishing touch to an evening that might have been perfect.

Pre-game pep talks resulted in a 6-0 lead in the first fifteen seconds of the game, but, later, Coach Carlos Bell returns to the bench to urge the Titans to "fight a little harder."

Amid the band and majorette corps half-time show, Mr. Longshore and Karen Darland crown senior Patty Taylor as queen of the 1967 Homecoming. As her most important royal act, Queen Patty lit the fuse to the Key Club's $135 firework display.

Arousing school spirit and supporting the Titans was the main task of the Tech cheerleaders. Sparking enthusiasm as members of the varsity squad are Karen Spaw and Jill Armstrong; Patty Taylor, Joann Irwin and Becky Buchanan.

'Bourbon Street' draws happy throng

Laughter, gaiety and light hearts against a backdrop of autumn leaves prevailed on the night of the Mardi Gras. To begin the festivities, everyone was invited to enjoy an evening meal under the hazy October 7 sky.

Upon entering the gym all were swept up in a whirl of fast-paced events.

Dumping mud

on some unfortunate Boys' Octette member, shaving a balloon, sending a friend to jail, having the future foretold, and racing slot cars offered amusement to all.

Patrons enjoyed the traditional autumn treats—cider from a wooden keg and crisp candy apples.

Victors at the 35 booths

rejoiced at winning teddy bears, straw hats, cakes and goldfish.

The not-so-lucky were rewarded with rubber insects, colorful leis, whistles and paper umbrellas.

Potted plants, "mod" tiger-striped berets, jewelry, and odds-and-ends separated Techites from their tickets.

Climaxing weeks of campaigning, the crowning of Miss Treble Clef, Brenda Bailey, and Mr. Bass Clef, Randy Brown, by Principal and Mrs. Longshore, was a victory for the band and orchestra.

Above: From its Telegraph-a-Techite booth, the Spanish Club, sponsored by Mrs. Maria Lagadon, contacts missing persons via the public address system.

Right: Mr. Douglas Perry suffers the perils of a new teacher as the Boys Octette sells "Mud-in-the-Eye" to a succession of eager rope pullers.

Preparations for the Mardi Gras explode as Debbie Kuykendall wears down crayons, misplaces marking pens and splatters paint in an attempt to finish a Concert Club poster.

Brenda Bailey and Randy Brown, newly crowned king and queen, bring honor to the band and orchestra respectively.

Having been caught in her evil deed and thrown into jail, Cindy Lewis pleads to her friends to bail her out.

*Above: Brenda Moore at the local FTA Barber Shop finds that shaving a balloon is harder than it looks.
Left: With paper lanterns and streamers creating an air of gaiety, the Mardi Gras provided popcorn, prizes and laughs for all.*

Miracle Worker stirs responsive audience

The miracle Annie Sullivan brought about in the life of young Helen Keller gave a Tech audience a new insight into the world of the blind, but more than that, a renewed appreciation of the five senses. Blind and deaf since infancy, unable to speak, the rebellious Helen, enacted by a nine year old, posed a small revolution in her family. Drama Club members portraying the heart-broken mother, the indulgent father; the firm, persistent, embattled teacher gave the Tech audience a new experience in drama on both sides of the footlights.

Contributing to the success of the production, the stage crew under the direction of instructor Ray Turner work to produce an outstanding set for The Miracle Worker. Shown: Michael Boofer, Richard Umbarger, Steve Durham, Le'Mont Purvis, Mr. Turner, Steve Beckham, Philip Graves.

The Miracle Worker: Front Row—Diane Wright, Patti Wythe, Kim Anderson, Linda Chronis, Pam Phillips, blind girls and pupils of Miss Sullivan. Up the stairs: Cosette Goodrum, Helen Keller; Patricia Polovick, Annie Sullivan; Marsha Morgan, Kate Keller; Mark Hanna, Arthur Keller; Don Knorr, James Keller; Linda Cornett, Aunt Ev. Top: Mike Moore, Percy; Karol Reed, Martha; Deborah Marshall, Viney. Side: William Barton, Agagnos; Paul Keefe, the doctor.

Battling for control and obedience of Helen Keller, her father, the captain, and her teacher, Ann Sullivan, conflict over methods of bringing Helen out of her dark world and educating her. Ann's firm discipline won out over the permissiveness of Helen's family.

Weeks of bitter, seemingly futile, work are rewarded as Helen Keller learns the meaning of words from teacher Annie Sullivan. Ann pounds the letters for the word water into Helen's willing hand, as she forms the word with her lips in this dramatic scene at the pump climaxing the Tech all-school play production.

Mr. Howard also teaches biology.

Mrs. Harold Deem, instructor in the Evening Division, demonstrates the Print Shop's new color separation enlarger for former pupil Lawrence Miller. The only high school in the country to own this equipment, Tech first printed in full color the photo of Stuart Hall on the cover of the Open House program folder.

Holiday fetes use Latin, U.S. Themes

Entertaining "Roman citizens" at the History Club's Saturnalia celebration, Techites Ain Haas and Warren Burris stage a wrestling exhibition on December 14, 1967, in the Cafeteria.

Auctioning "slaves" for as much as $8.75, cheering for their favorite wrestler, and witnessing the "murder" of Julius Caesar made guests feel their parts as Roman patricians and plebians at the Saturnalia celebration.

Tech History Club members and guests from the Arlington Latin and Howe History Clubs attended the banquet on December 14.

Toy soldiers, flags, and a Christmas tree filled with red, white, and blue lights sparked the Cafeteria with holiday spirit for the 1967-68 Military Ball December 16.

Enjoying the festivities of the Saturnalia, Tech History Club members lounge in the Cafeteria. Counterclockwise are Don Knorr, Linda Lowman, Marilyn Isbell, a guest from Arlington, Gary Etchison, Chris Russell and Sharyl Gaskins, all clad in Roman togas.

A visit from Santa Claus (Sgt. Fizer) brought the title of king of the ROTC Christmas dance to C/Capt. Robert Hill. Mrs. Howard Longshore adjusts the crown as Sgt. Thomas Dawson, who served as master of ceremonies, and "Santa" look on.

Senior Donna Blount receives an early Christmas present, the tiara and roses of queen of the 1967-68 Military Ball from Principal Howard Longshore. Stephen Behlmer's band provided the music for the dance.

"Sky's the limit" for '68 Sketchbook

Boarding Sketchbook Airlines for Flight 36, the audience soared to the heights with the 1968 show, "The Sky's the Limit." Using an airline travel theme, the annual student variety show was presented March 7 and 8 in the Boys' Gym. Four impressive backdrops painted by the Stagecraft Department provided the scenery for the acts located in the New York City Airport, a German beer garden, a Mexican fiesta, and the Tivoli Circus in Copenhagen, Denmark. Students in Germany polka-ed in the beer garden; acrobats clowned at the Tivoli Circus while horses, bears and gorillas danced, and the chorus waved good-bye with "Up—Up and Away" to entertain the "world travellers" in the two-hour "sightseeing trip."

Acrobats Debbie Deckard and Karen Darland entertain the audience with their gymnastic skills in a performance at the Tivoli Circus. Another Tivoli highlight was the moment when a tiny clown, played by Harold Lund, was apparently shot through the air by a cannon.

At a dress rehearsal Brenda Bailey and Nikki Hart perform to the beat of modern jazz, unaware that Steve Handy is peeking through the curtain for a sneak preview of their act.

Activities

Breezing along with Tech's extracurricular program,
 Snoopy joined Techites
 in a great variety of activities.
 Entertainment and education mixed as pupils participated in the many club-sponsored events.
 Some were leaders; others, followers.
 Teachers, printers, nurses and radiomen emerged in vocationally related clubs.
 Techites learned to share with school, community, country and world through the service clubs.
 Class related clubs
 extended the educational process, while other organizations offered outlets for self-expression, relaxation and fun.

SAO heads student body, entertains guests

Off to a running start with the election of new members, the Student Affairs Organization proceeded to a busy calendar of events. Mardi Gras behind them, they sponsored Incense and Peppermints, the fall dance.

A month later came the Christmas dinner for Board members and their parents.

During the week of visitation by a committee of the North Central Association, Principal Longshore and guests briefed the representative body of SAO at an assembly. They then carried the message to their roll rooms.

Later, a reception for alumni and finally a May Breakfast rounded out the year's activities.

SAO Roll Room representatives become attentive as president Jack Seibert opens a meeting in the Forum. On the stage are Principal Longshore and members of the North Central Association Evaluation Committee. The educators visited the school for four days during December.

Club, Council, Committee promote school affairs

Combining their energies, the Key Club set forth to provide services. Responsible for collecting foods for needy families, members received assistance from Tech roll rooms. In keeping with their motto, the Key Club also rang bells for the Salvation Army.

Expanding friendship and goodwill among Techites was the aim of the Human Relations Committee. At the Thanksgiving assembly, the committee staged a meeting, presenting their reasons for being thankful. Included on the agenda was a visit to Public School 101. Members addressed incoming September freshmen on reasons for staying in school and opportunities at Tech.

Held on March 8, the Junior Council election gave juniors the chance to choose those classmates they wanted as representatives. After the 12-member council was chosen they set about organizing an agenda including plans for the Junior Prom and Junior Career Day.

Efficiency, devoted effort pay off for Yearbook Staff

Meeting the March 15 deadline, required effort and hard work from each of the 32 staff members. Photographers took pics of the "happenings" on campus, in classrooms, at games, dances and assemblies. Relating the action was the task of copy writers. Reporting, writing, correcting, and typing finished copy consumed many hours. Arranging pics and copy on the page in the best possible order employed those staffers having a knowledge of layout. Techites new to staff worked in the areas best suited them. Unfamiliar terms such as gutter, spread, scalograph, flush, and crop became commonly used by new staffers as they acquired knowledge of yearbook procedure.

Cannon kiddies concerned with promotion wrote slogans, painted posters, and tied ribbons around peanuts in preparation for the selling campaign. Charlie Brown, Schroeder, Lucy, and Linus appeared in the kick-off skit.

To relax between work sessions, staffers enjoyed parties and trips dealing with yearbook functions. Press conventions, movies, and parties rounded out the year.

Lively staff creates first-class paper

Publishing a weekly newspaper required the combined efforts of reporters, editors, typists and messengers. With pencils and pads in hand reporters set out seeking the latest news concerning sports, dances, clubs, and various school events. Editorials presenting the opinions of students appeared in each issue. Sports coverage from the student's point of view gave readers an insight into the reasons for defeat or victory. Keeping pace with school activities, the Cannon weekly reported newsworthy events throughout the year.

Thespians stage serious drama, comedies

Personifying the motto of the stage, "the show must go on," Tech actors presented their original Mardi Gras plays in Room 402 of the gym at the October 7 festival. Four plays, "The Truly Weds," "The Flunkies," "The Intraitors," and "The Spies of Life," exhibited Titan writing as well as acting abilities.

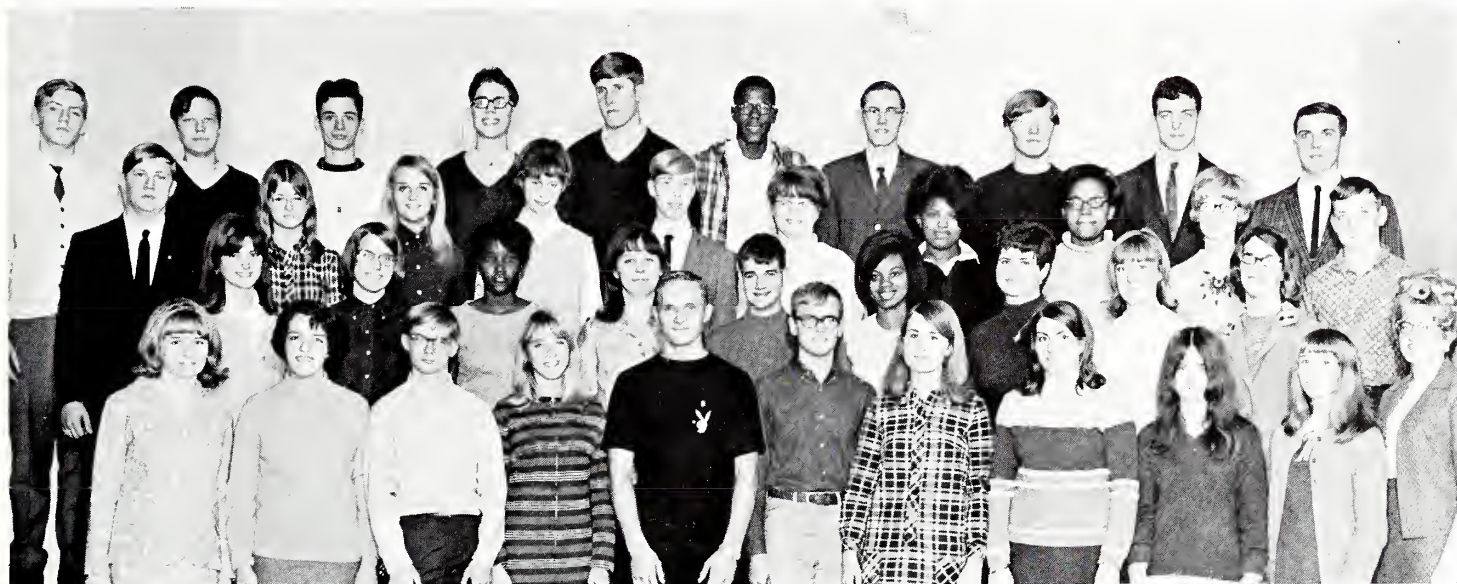

A wiener roast at Mrs. Webber's home and special initiation of Thespians were on the fall social agenda.

The all-school play "The Miracle Worker" entertained near-capacity audiences in the Forum, November 16-17.

Christmas activities centered on the production of "Two Hundred Years To Deck a Hall," a comedy about an earth-bound angel named Erwin. William Barton, junior, wrote the play.

Speech Team, Debaters earn recognition

Should Congress establish uniform regulations to control criminal investigation procedures? Tech Debate Team presented year-long arguments pro and con on this subject. In Marion County debates, the team brought home one-third wins with sub-varsity showing as much skill as varsity. Team members spent long hours in libraries searching for new evidence.

Debaters weren't the only ones to rise early Saturday mornings. Tech Speech Team placed fifth among 35 schools. Speaking at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Original Speech Contest, Tech winners received a $25 bond and a flag pin for first place and runner-up respectively.

Techoir seasonal concerts entertain city

Members of the 1967 Techoir join in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" at the annual spring concert at the World War Memorial.

From Room 648 the fifth period each day came sounds of guys and gals gaily singing light, airy tunes.

Members especially enjoyed taping their annual Christmas record, with lunch at a nearby restaurant. Laughter resounded as customers stopped to view 75 teenagers streaming in the door.

The choir went caroling downtown, at Monument Circle, on the escalators of a department store, and at the City-County building, ending with a luncheon in Ayres' Tea Room for the hungry singers.

Heading the agenda of spring activities was the annual Spring Concert presented at the World War Memorial.

Ensembles warble through hectic social calendar

The Boys Octette is one of the oldest singing groups in Indianapolis. The highlight of the year was the banquet, given by the current octette for the previous members, to renew friendships.

The Melodayres presented a Christmas concert at Greenwood Shopping Center and also at Stoeffer's. They sang "White Christmas" with Miss Indiana of '65 as soloist while Miss Indiana of '67 ice skated.

When most of the students of Tech were taking it easy during Teachers' Convention, the Girls Ensemble was busy with a concert at the Marott Hotel. The girls sang a few of their favorite selections which included "More" and "Blowing in the Wind."

Members of the Girls Ensemble are busy learning their parts for the program in the Forum, January 23 and for the vocal contest, February 3.

Guys, gals vocalize for programs, assemblies

To the nervously shaking students backstage, Mrs. Sandra Fanning was a welcome sight. Her pre-performance clowning took away all the bad memories of hard labor for the past two months and replaced them with fun and a feeling of accomplishment. After calming down, the Girls Concert Club opened the Christmas Concert with the lively "Christmas Party." The grand finale was sparked by their version of "Sleigh Ride."

After a brief pause for Christmas vacation, the Girls Concert Club began training again—this time for the Spring Festival. A total of eleven new songs made up their program.

Joining with other music groups, the Boys Concert Club participated in the Christmas assembly. Comprising the remainder of their agenda were the All-City Boys' Concert Festival, annual spring concert, and a picnic on campus.

Orchestra, String Ensemble play for school, community functions

Under John White, the new director, orchestra members practiced, not only in class, but on their own. Through purchase of many new music selections this year, the group broadened its repertoire. Moreover, many members had the opportunity to observe top orchestras at work in concerts and music shows.

Keeping with tradition, the Orchestra performed at Eastgate Shopping Center, assemblies and the Band-Orchestra Concert.

Programs, programs! That is a good description of the past year for the String Ensemble. The group took many engagements to help defray the cost of the new outfits.

Concert Band performs with new director

To the cadence of drums, the Tech Band marched onto the football field in their green and white uniforms. Led by James Chandler, their new director, and Dan Reneau, drum major, they created an outstanding show for an enthusiastic audience. Members observed films and television to gain ideas for improvement.

The band marched at football games, ROTC inspections, pep sessions, and parades. In winter, the concert season, they played for assemblies, and many extra-curricular activities.

Friday Night, 7:30 and Tech's majorettes give the evening's routine the final run-through. Making sure of everything before the band leaves for the stadium are Teresa Sultzer, Brenda Bailey, Jackie Fagan, Pam Cooper and Sherry Burks.

Three nights a week for more than two months, Tech's majorettes joined the marching band to practice new routines. Enjoying a moment of rest are Judy McCullough, Janet Scott, Marilyn Frost, Donna Miller, Mary Jane Peterman, Sharon Smith, Sherry Burks, Carolyn Hand and Nikki Hart.

Each day the ninth period, the Tech majorettes trooped into the girl's gym to prepare routines for the half-time performances at football and basketball games. Twice a week the majorettes were given instructions in new routines by Mrs. Mary L. Chandler. Discussion of problems, practice sessions, and inspection composed the weekly schedule of events.

The biggest problem faced by the majorettes was a uniform appearance. To achieve perfection the girls' make-up, hairstyles, and costumes were as similar as possible. Shades of make-up adopted were pink blush, jade green eye-shadow, brown eye-liner, and million-dollar red lipstick.

Service projects expand Tech's influence

Emphasizing service to school and community, the Tech Service Club combined fun with hard work during the '67-'68 year. In the spring, members prepared for their annual cleanup campaign. "Don't throw it; bag it"—represented their theme.

Fall activities focused primarily on Mardi Gras and Homecoming. A "Be hip and sip" slogan attracted customers to the Mardi Gras cider booth. Homecoming mums promoted the game and festivities surrounding it.

Combining a membership drive with community service programs, the High School Red Cross sent party boxes to children's hospitals and orphanages. They entertained mental hospital patients and packed the traditional wooden chest sent to Viet Nam.

Organizing trips and projects to benefit themselves and others was the primary aim of the Y-Teens. A tour of the Indiana University campus gave the girls an opportunity to have an inside glimpse of college life. Highlights were browsing through a bookstore and viewing Foster dormitory and its facilities. Christmas caroling and a Yuletide dinner rounded out the year.

Lighting a candle of leadership, Ronald Fagan is installed as treasurer of the Tech Service Club. Judy McBride, sponsor, conducted the initiation ceremony held in the Student Center on Tuesday, November 14, 1967. The ceremony was open to all Service Club members and their parents and was followed by a reception.

Caves, generator intrigue science clubs

Equipped with lanterns, flashlights, and helmets, Natural Science students braved through the back-breaker of Sullivan's cave. After the  $\frac{1}{2}$ -mile,  $4\frac{1}{2}$ -foot stoop, a narrow corridor led to the mountain room.

Students of the Chemistry-Physics Club rebuilt a long-dormant generator. Sanding off corrosion and replacing fanbelt and contacts kept the junior scientists in unbearable anxiety. Another project was the cave trip, at Wayne's Cave, postponed to February 24.

Culture hits music, art, history groups

Sassafras and cider spiced a brief Brown County interlude for members of the History Club, sponsored by Mr. Richard Clutter. Later stopping at Indiana University, Bloomington, members marveled at a crystal chandelier weighing five tons and stood in awe at a portrait of Lincoln as a young man. Mummies and mummy cases also impressed the tourists.

When members of the Music Club get their own pins, the main project of the year will be realized. Other events included a rainy day picnic on November 11, and a gay Christmas party. On the evening of December 20, the group sponsored a reception in Stuart Tower after the Christmas concert.

The Art Club year included visits to the Meridian Galleries and several arts and crafts projects.

Sprechen usted Français, amicus?

Crepes suzettes, symphonic music, tacos and a typical Roman Saturnalia gave variety to the year's activities for foreign language pupils.

Latin pupils, members of the Junior Classical League, planned a pagan festival in honor of the god Saturn as part of their holiday observance.

French Club members made much of Christmas in their own way by feasting on such gourmet items as crêpes suzettes, pâte de foie gras, and buche de Noël.

Outings to Indiana Central College to hear the Zurich Symphony Orchestra and to a local theatre for a showing of Sound of Music diverted German clubbers and deepened their cultural appreciation.

Spanish Club members started their year with a picnic in Brookside Park. Their mid-year project was the preparation of a Christmas piñata.

The German Club sold potted plants at the Mardi Gras; the JCL told fortunes; French Club operated a photography studio with a Parisian background; and the Spanish Club operated the communications center known as Telegraph-a-Techite.

Future businessmen, teachers explore jobs

Special speakers and service projects were included in the 1967-68 activities of the Future Teachers of America, who sponsored two booths at the Mardi Gras. At Christmas, red felt stockings, stuffed with candy, were sent to children in Community Hospital's pediatric ward. The FTA co-sponsored the Valentine Tea for teachers and later presented apples to each in appreciation of his efforts. Easter baskets were sent to a home for the aged before spring vacation.

To become a teacher is a challenging job, and the Exploratory Teaching class helped students decide if they would like to undertake the task. Considered a co-curricular activity, Exploratory Teaching was a two-period, one-credit course offered to seniors. Seniors enrolled in this course were assigned to a cooperating teacher from kindergarten to the ninth grade level. Sponsoring Exploratory Teaching was Clyde Smith, Jr.

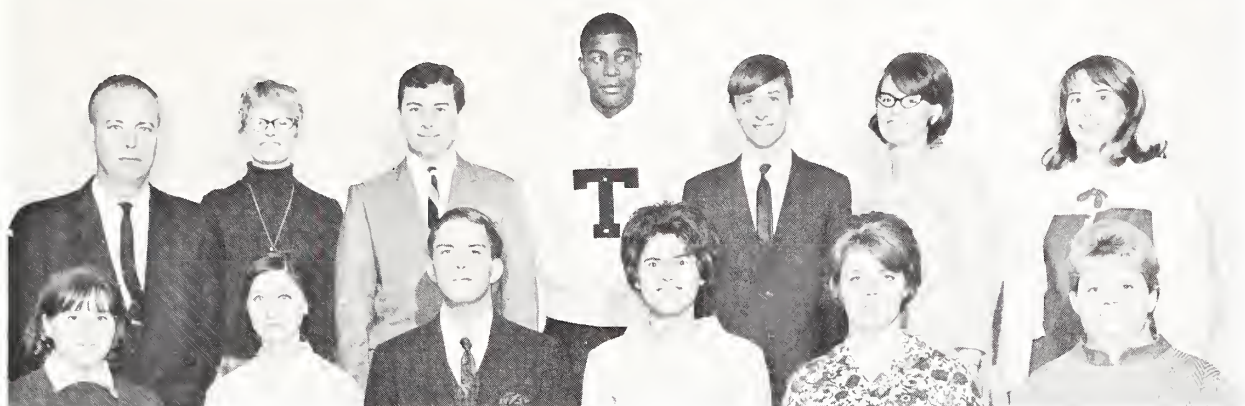

Diversified Cooperative Education, with several large Indianapolis companies, offered employment for Techites of junior class standing. After attending school for five periods, Techites then took up their occupational lives. Firms such as Indiana Bell, Community Hospital, and Eli Lilly offered 15 different fields from which to choose. In return for their labors students received wages and school credit.

GAA, Lettermen excel in sportsmanship

Tech's gymnastic clubs for girls provided many types of sports activities. The Girls Athletic Association offered volleyball and spot-bowling plus the chance to earn award letters on the basis of skills and attendance.

The newest gymnastic activity was the Girls Intramurals. Members accomplished such feats as poise on the balance beam, coordination on the parallel bars, and tumbling.

Teaming up with the regular cheerblock, the Lettermen's Club organized its own cheering section to back the Titan team. After the Scecina-Tech game the Lettermen sponsored a sock-hop, featuring the Rebel Kind. Finishing the agenda was their own spring banquet.

Open to everyone attending the game, the sock hop grooved to the beat of the Rebel Kind. This was the first sock hop held in the Tech gymnasium since the 1966 refinishing of the gym floor. Based on the success of this sock-hop, the Lettermen's Club hopes to continue the tradition with more after-game dances.

Math, chess, library groups 'dig' culture

Techites didn't have to be Einsteins to enjoy the activities offered by the XYZ Club this year. Brightening their schedule were a Halloween party, and a trip to Allison's Powerama. The Powerama, an exhibit of General Motors achievements fascinated the members.

Sharpening their skills in preparation for the International Grand Chess Match, Chess Club members scheduled matches with other schools and among themselves. Robert Burne, one of the six best players in the country, tested the wits and skills of the Tech players.

Numbering 67, the Tech library assistants proved valuable assets to the librarians. Included in the numerous tasks they accomplished were processing and registering books and typing catalog cards. Of course when all else was finished there were always books and shelves to straighten and dust.

Prayer Circle, Photo, Radio Clubs active

Christian fellowship was the theme of the Tech Prayer Circle, meeting daily. Special events included a get-acquainted party, and a letter of recognition from Col. Robert Mottern, school commissioner.

Visual imagery came to life for the new Photography Club as they explored various photographic fields. Visits to a processing plant and a studio offered information on developing films and color telecasting.

"CQ, CQ, W9HFQ calling!" was a familiar sound to radio hams. With only one person holding an operator's license, the Tech Radio Club prepared for license exams. To receive the novice license, members had to learn to transmit and receive International Morse Code at five words per minute.

Printing Club meetings offered members news about printing machinery. One meeting explained the use of the new IBM cold-type typewriter.

Spirited cheer squad leads 'Titans-ooo,ah!'

Early season play included the Elwood game held in the Tech Gym, and varsity cheerleaders Jill Armstrong, captain; Patty Taylor, Becky Buchanan, Karen Spaw and Jo Ann Irwin line up to speed the Titan team on to another victory. Their green and white shakers and the Titan badges sold for many games boosted Tech spirit for football and basketball.

"Ooh—umgawa! Titans got the power!" Tech fans chanted for a basketball victory with the help of the varsity cheerleaders. The 1967-68 squad, composed of Jill Armstrong, captain; Becky Buchanan, JoAnn Irwin, Karen Spaw, and Patty Taylor, was chosen by last year's cheerleaders, Mrs. Mary Lou Manka, sponsor; and several faculty members in the spring of 1967. Leadership ability, coordination, and appearance are criteria for selection. Weekly practice sessions through the spring were the first steps toward future perfection in their yells. Attendance in June at Smith-Waldrige Cheerleading camp netted honors for Jill and Patty. In August daily work-outs replaced weekly sessions in preparation for the Football Jamboree and the coming sports season.

A Thanksgiving holiday game with Southport dampens Tech spirits somewhat as Karen and Becky watch the Titans. Expectations go down in the first defeat of the season.

Patty holds her breath and hopes silently while Jo Ann and Jill scream their enthusiasm for a play by the Tech team in the unsuccessful North Central game in regular season play.

"Go, fight, win!" screams Jill Armstrong, captain of the varsity cheerleaders as she stirs Titan enthusiasm at the Southport football game.

Below: Becky Buchanan utters a sigh of relief as the Titan basketball team scores another two points in its win over Arlington.

Traveling to Ben Davis on December 8, Titans witnessed a 79-71 defeat, but Patty, JoAnn, Jill, Karen, and Becky register varied expressions as team members practice during half-time. Also at half-time, the pep band provides rousing tunes to pace colorful routines by the majorettes.

Tryouts, drill, games fill cheerleader year

"Go!" yells Karen as she exercises her favorite cheer at a reserve home game.

Practice sessions were over and the girls had given their best as they tried out for freshman and reserve cheerleader positions.

In first cuts a total of 51 girls were judged on appearance and coordination. Judges were cheerleaders and Mrs. Mary Lou Manka, sponsor.

After elimination, five freshman and five reserve cheerleaders engaged in weekly practice sessions with the varsity. All three teams were seasoned for participation as the sports schedule opened in the fall.

The most exciting time of the year was the hustle of City Tourney, with the reserve basketball team winning runnerup and the freshman team winning city championship.

Gimme a T! Five of them! Karen Darland, Getsy Hopkins, Linda Chapman, Susie Cutshaw, and Marsha Shewman.

'67 golfers battle foes to chalk up 6-7 mark

1967 Tech golfers under the leadership of Coach Phillip Quillin battled to a 6-7 mark. The 6-man varsity squad consisted of returning letterman William Devitt; consistent golfers James Soltau, John Green, and Roger Vitt; much improved golfer James Jordan and first-year man Ron Brenner.

Number one man on the varsity squad in 1967 was Green who posted a 41.5 average, followed closely by Devitt with a 43.5. Other golfers and respective averages were: Soltau—44.7, Vitt—45.1, Jordan—47.7, and Brenner—49.9.

High school golf pits each golfer against a nearly-evenly matched opponent of the opposing team. Each individual golfer can win a maximum of two points, one for match play and one for medal play, and the number of points of all golfers is the team's score.

Tech diamond dwellers bounced back after a frustrating 4-11 season in '66 with a 10-6 count in '67. The Titans placed third in city competition. Until defeated by Broad Ripple 2-1, Tech was tied with city rival Arlington for first slot.

Bill Mansfield's pitching tallied the most Titan victories. He ended the season 6-4. Jack Schafer finished 3-1

The greatest upset was the Tech romp over Wood's Woodchucks by a score of 16-1. The Titans tallied 21 hits to Wood's 4. Jack Schafer was credited with the victory.

Tech was defeated 2-1 in the first sectional game by Warren Central, after previously defeating Warren 7-6 in season play.

Tech trackmen excel despite handicaps

The Titan Track Team which was beset by injuries, graduations and ineligibility, nevertheless, won two dual meets but lost three. They also showed potential by placing third in the city and sectional meets.

Among individual stars of the squad was Roger Holder who won the city title in the pole vault and placed fourth in the regional meet.

Louis Ford placed second in the 220- and 100-yard dashes and was Tech's only representative at the state meet.

Paul Glaspie placed second in the city in the 880 and fourth in the regional track meet.

The reserve team was undefeated all season with many of the freshmen on the reserve squad. Freshmen won the city championship.

Coach Bowers gives helpful information to the Cross Country runners in a practice session.

The Cross Country team under the leadership of Head Coach Bruce McGeath and his assistant, Melvin Bowers, respectively led their teams to city championships in varsity, reserve and freshman competition. The varsity had to share honors with the Cathedral team as they finished in a 61 tie. This tie was the first in the city cross-country history. The reserve showed team balance and varsity potential as they outdistanced the 12-team reserve field easily to capture the city. The freshman team, however, had to fight off a determined Wood combination to take the city championship.

The three teams also gave fine performances in invitational as the varsity placed third in the Columbus Invitational. The freshmen placed second in the Columbus and second in the Shortridge Invitational.

The Varsity Cross Country Team led by seniors David Bailey and Paul Glaspie, led their group to third in the Riverside Sectional, but, hampered by illness, the varsity team was unable to advance into state competition which was won by Muncie Central.

Titans net points in first tennis sectional

Two hard-swinging Titan racquet men smashed their way to runner-up position in the sectional of Indiana's first state Tennis Tournament last fall.

Only Scecina defeated Tech's number one double of Mike Gemmill and Martin Toney, 6-1. Previously Tech's top duo eliminated Southport 10-8, 4-6, 6-4; and Howe, 9-7, 6-4.

For being runners-up, Gemmill and Toney were awarded red ribbons.

Tech's number-two doubles team of Gary Gartrell and Guy Luttrell bowed before a Southport pair, 5-7, 3-6.

Tech's tennis men finished the '67 spring season with 9-6 over-all and 8-4 city records. Only Broad Ripple, Arlington, and Kennedy ranked higher.

Dennis Alexander compiled a glossy season mark, 13-2, while Arthur Simpson finished 11-4 and Guy Luttrell, 10-5.

Varsity Football Team improving in '67

The Titan varsity football team inched back after a frustrating 1-9 '66 season with a 3-7 '67 season record.

Behind sophomore quarterback Steve Funke, the Titans won their first two games, defeating Howe 7-6 and Broad Ripple 9-6. The Titans did not find the winning touch again until the next to the last game of the season when they defeated Marshall 46-24.

Steve Funke's touchdown pass gave the Titans their first win of the season against Howe. Senior half-back James Carter set up the score when he threw to Mark Winzenread for 20 yards on an option play. Funke then passed to Charles Johnson for the score.

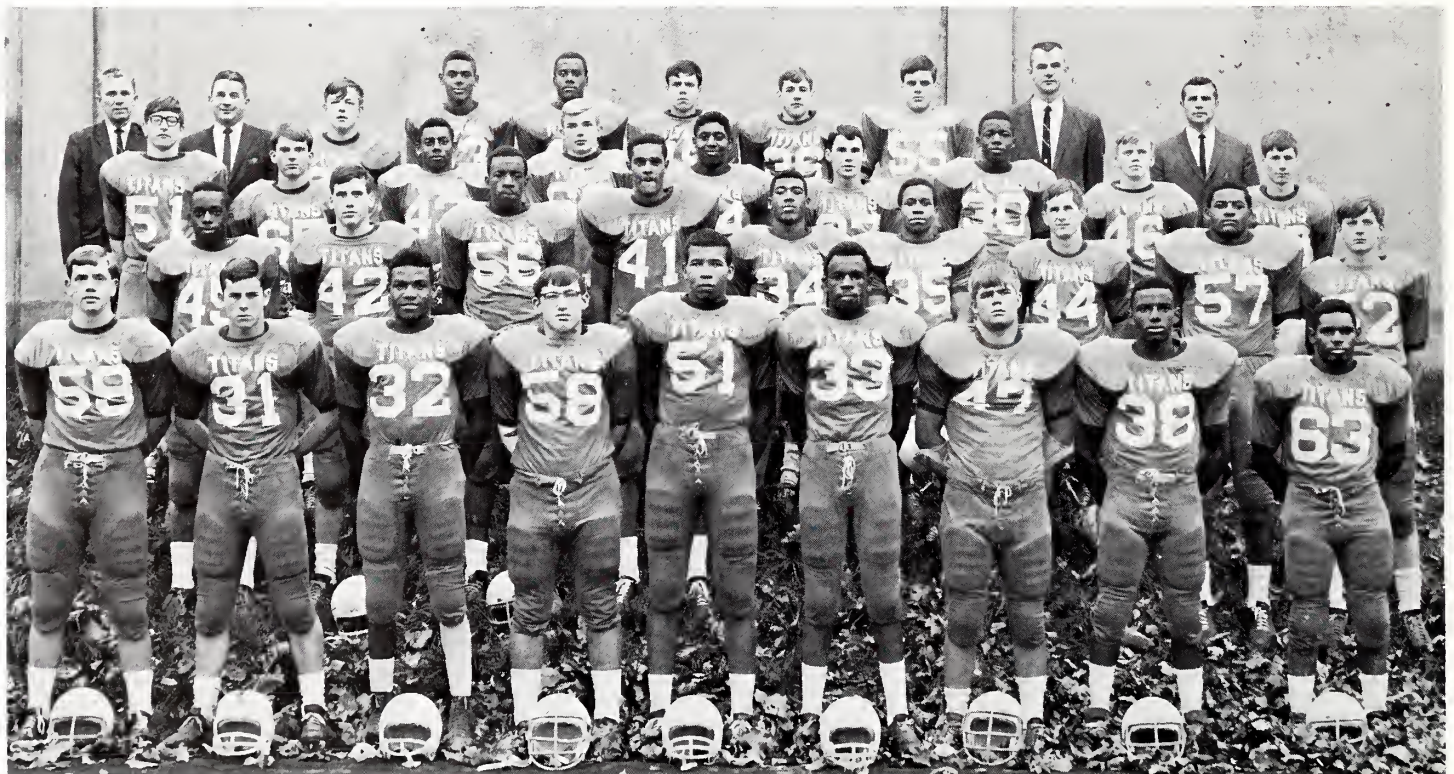

Carter paved the way to victory as he passed to sophomore Vic Breland for 45 yards and the score. Randall Woods put the crucial game-winning extra point through the uprights. The Titans padded their leading score when Ripple's quarterback, Gary Larson, was mowed down behind the goal line by Nate Appleton, James Lewis and Will Jones.

Junior back Milton Allen broke the school scoring record against Marshall when he galloped for six touchdowns. Allen totaled more than 370 yards rushing, during the course of the game. Milt had scoring jaunts of 55, 87, 14, 53, 37, and 67 yards. Vic Breland made the only other score. He had a run of 48 yards late in the fourth quarter.

Sophomores practically dominated the starting positions with Steve Funke at quarterback, and Tom Hickey, Vic Breland, Ron Sayles, Kent Clark, and Roger Payne used as regular starters.

Reserve football team has average season

The Titan reserve football team came up with a 5-5 season record, an average season for the team.

Coach Dininger saw great improvement in the boys as the year progressed. Many of the boys were able to move up to varsity positions in the latter part of the season. The coaches are counting on many of the boys to fill the empty positions on the varsity squad.

Outstanding players on the team on offense were quarterback Rex Marshall, Jack Harmon, Steve Grubb, John Hilton, and John Kirby. On defense were V. J. Harper, Dwight Chrenshaw, Herman Fant, Bob Medcalf, and Harry Ragsdale. Most of these players stay in shape throughout the season by participating in other sports.

Freshmen bounce back after frustrating start

The '67 freshman football team lost the first three games of the season, a morale breaking beginning, but the Little Titans did not lose their spunk. After dropping to Howe, Broad Ripple, and Cathedral they won their next three games, beating Scecina, Creston, and Manual. Washington was the only other team to hand them a defeat. Shortridge needed to beat the freshmen to become city champs, but failed. The game was scoreless until Steve Breland intercepted a pass and ran it 73 yards for the score, with 73 seconds left in the game, a real cliff hanger.

Varsity drop city, sectional to Washington

Defeating the Deaf School, Howe, and Cathedral, the varsity basketball squad earned the right to meet big threat Washington in a struggle for the city title. Trouble began for the green and white in the first quarter when Washington took an eight-point lead.

Jump shots and driving layups by George McGinnis spelled ruin for the Titans. Washington finally triumphed 73-60.

Three weeks after the city tourney, the Greenclads took revenge on the visiting Continentals by a 70-64 victory. Washington led at the end of the first two stops, 17-16 and 37-33. Price had only four points in the first half. In the third quarter, the Titans fought back to a 51-51 tie. Price, Appleton, Gaddie, and Pride hit shots from every angle. With only 30 seconds left in the game, the Titans had a two-point lead. Rowland Richardson was fouled; he missed the first of a possible one-and-one. Frank Kendrick tipped it in to give the Titans a four-point lead. Bob Gaddie added the last two points on a layup in the closing 10 seconds.

The Titans dumped tough Shortridge 55-53 for their 12th win of the season. The Blue Devils led at the end of the first period 12-9 and at the end of the second 24-20. Behind Price and Appleton, the Titans built up a 41-36 lead at the end of the third quarter. Shortridge's Oscar Evans tied up the game with about 11 seconds to go. The Titans came down the floor and Nate Appleton's shot was off the mark and went out off a Blue Devil's foot. Price was double-teamed on the far side of the court when Rowland Richardson threw the ball in. Appleton was wide open and took the inbounds pass. He took a 20-foot jump shot that went through the net with two seconds to go. Shortridge was unable to get the ball down court before the final gun sounded.

The Titans again lost to Washington in the final game of the Hinkle Sectional, having beaten Arlington 55-40 and North Central 63-58. Fouls on the Titans in the final game caused Appleton, Price, Gaddie, and Richardson to go to the bench early in the fourth quarter. With these starters gone, the Titans couldn't handle George McGinnis and company. The Titans lost the game 70-65.

Titan reserve netmen boast 15-7 season

The Titan reserves came up with a very respectable 15-7 season record. They were runner up in the city tourney. In the tourney, they beat Northwest, 46-25, Attucks 54-37, Howe 63-46, and lost to Manual 46-41 in the final game.

Manual jumped out to a 11-9 first quarter lead, and the Titans were never able to surpass them. Manual had a 22-15 half-time lead. The Titans kept falling behind as the game progressed. The Titans were down by eight, 35-27 at the third quarter stop. The reserves were able to cut the lead to five at the end of the game, 46-41. Willie Booker had 12 points on six fielders to earn high honors for the Titans. Kent Clark was next with 11 points. Manual's high point man had 14 points and their next high had 13 points. A week before the tourney the Titans beat the Redskins 43-41 at Manual. So the tourney game gave the Redskins revenge on the Titan reserves.

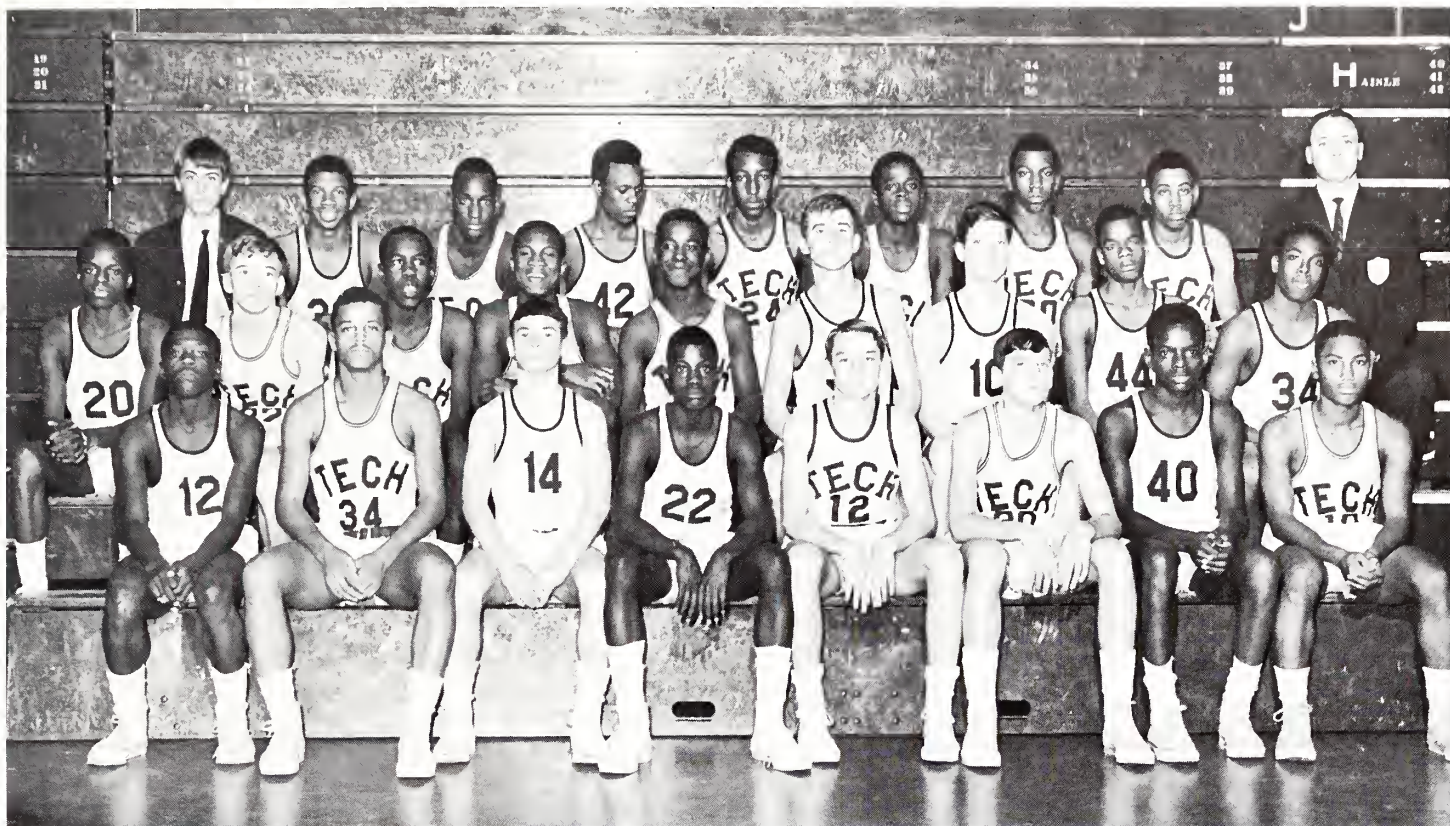

Many of these reserves will probably advance to varsity to fill the empty positions there next season.

Ernie Cline's freshman basketball team captured the city title again this season. In the final game with Shortridge, the frosh took a first quarter lead and were never behind the rest of the game. However, they lost a six point lead in the final few minutes that set coach Cline on the edge of his seat until the game ended.

The little Greenclads were defeated only twice throughout the 18 game season. They were victims of Attucks, 45-41, and Washington 47-45. Washington took revenge on the Titans for the defeat in the second of the city tourney.

Coach Cline's starting five usually consisted of Bruce Johnson and Roy Penn at the forwards, Bob Powell at center, and Paul Wilson and Charles Battle at the guards. However, occasionally he would place Jim Gilbert, Kenneth Sanders, and Larry Ward in starting positions.

Freshman Charles Battle swipes the ball from an Arlington opponent as the rest of the team sprints down the floor after him.

land, Ain Haas, John Crenshaw, Will A. Jones, Robert J. Childs, manager.

Frosh wrestlers capture city; reserves second

The Titan varsity mat men didn't have as good a season as the reserves and freshmen. The varsity won only three of their 11 matches this season. However, they did have two boys who were runners-up in the city. They were sophomore Rex Marshall who wrestles 138 and Joe Norton who wrestles 180. Ain Haas, Will Jones, and Lemul Stigler took third, fourth, and fourth in the sectional tourney.

Rex Marshall, who is only a sophomore, won the outstanding wrestler's award. Rex's record was 16 victories against only seven setbacks. The varsity is only losing three seniors. They are Ain Haas, Steve Handy, and Joe Norton. The rest of the team will be back next year ready for action.

The freshmen had a very good season, losing only two matches out of the seven matches scheduled. They tied Perry East 24 to 24. The frosh were city champs, and they had four individual city champs. They were Wilbert Moore who wrestles 127, King Andrews who wrestles 145, and Jerry Neal who is a 154 pound wrestler. The frosh beat out Northwest and Washington who finished second and third respectively.

The reserves had a 5-6 season. They finished second in the city and also had four individual city champs. They were Dave Little at 103, Roy Burks at 112, Bili Maddox at 127, and Milton Allen who wrestles 180 pounds.

Administration

"Our Managers,"
the members of Tech's administration,
"ruled" the campus from the Arsenal.
Keeping tabs on all phases of student and faculty life,
this year they were particularly concerned with the North Central Association
Evaluation Visitation,
December 12-15, 1967.
The thorough examination of Tech, from the quality of the faculty to the effectiveness of the electric pencil sharpeners, was the subject of numerous tenth-hour administration-faculty meetings.
Meanwhile, keeping pupil records up to date,
coordinating schedules,
and feeding many hungry Techites were year-round jobs of the office and cafeteria staffs.

Conferring on the North Central Evaluation,
members of the Steering Committee assemble to complete some pressing paper work. Shown are, seated: Vice-Principal Kenneth Puckett, chairman; Principal Howard L. Longshore, Mrs. Barbara Dearing. Standing: C. Gaylord Allen, Vice-Principal Odus Landreth, Robert E. Meyers, Clyde S. Armel.

As principal of Tech, Mr. Howard Longshore meets his responsibilities to the community, the school, the staff, and the pupils with friendliness and understanding. His duties to the community include providing a high academic standard for the school and keeping the students and faculty members pursuing an orderly routine. Hiring teachers, helping them, and directing department heads make up some of his responsibilities to the staff. Speaking at athletic awards presentations, scholastic honors programs, and all-school assemblies comprise a few of his duties to the school. Maintaining the academic, athletic, and social standards at Tech fulfills his responsibilities to the students. Many of Mr. Longshore's duties this year have centered around the North Central Evaluation in which Tech has been examined by a board of educators from various educational institutions outside the city. School records and procedures have been under review.

Principal, aides administer Tech daily activities

Teaching algebra, instructing in physical education, and coaching varsity basketball have given Herman Hinshaw a varied background for his present position as vice-principal. Now in his twenty-fourth year at Tech, he concerns himself with pupil attendance and discipline.

In his fourth year as vice-principal, Kenneth Puckett has a full schedule. In charge of the school budget, he also is treasurer for extracurricular activities. Mr. Puckett also is in charge of the improvement of school buildings and the maintenance of grounds and equipment.

Vice-Principal Odus Landreth, in charge of teacher and office personnel, helps teachers solve their day-to-day school problems. He is also administrative assistant to Mr. Longshore, the principal. Another of Mr. Landreth's duties is helping new students plan programs. He seldom knows an idle moment.

After teaching in the mathematics department for 28 years, Robert Belding is beginning his second year as a vice-principal. Making and rearranging schedules to meet the needs of both students and teachers is only one of his many jobs. Credit evaluation and curriculum add up to a very busy day for Mr. Belding.

Serving as athletic director, Charles Dagwell keeps the pace of Tech's teams moving smoothly. Planning sports events, cheerleader activities, and the "Titan 300" represent some of his achievements.

Gaylord Allen, director of guidance, assists college-bound Techites in many fields. Processing college applications, arranging scholarships and administering and interpreting special tests enable Mr. Allen to counsel pupils about future plans.

Titan directors engineer smooth organization

Helping qualified students find positions through Diversified Cooperative Education Ernest Holmes aids pupils in receiving skill-ed on-the-job training.

Encouraging and guiding those with superior academic achievements, Wallace Potter directs Special Education. His duties center around the programs and awards honoring outstanding pupils.

As assistant director of the Evening School Division, William Lowes spends much of his time at Mallory Technical Institute, 1315 East Washington Street, which is operated by Tech as a division of the Indiana Vocational Technical College.

Director of publications, Cecil T. Tresslar concentrates his attention on the Cannon Kiddies. Correcting, rewriting and commenting, Mr. Tresslar heads the Cannon weekly.

Having obtained multiple titles in his ten years at Tech, Robert E. Meyer serves as director of student activities and public relations and as student assembly coordinator. A participant in many Tech functions, Mr. Meyer helps promote the school image.

Maintaining the position of audio visual director, G. Kenneth Barr aids in classroom work. Responsible for tapes, recorders, films and other equipment, he designs schedules for their proper use.

Left: Primarily interested in keeping Tech clean and neat, and equipment assigned to proper use, is the task of Lewis Marshall, director of shops, buildings and grounds. Below: Directing the 2900 pupils participating in the Evening School Division and maintaining control over extended classes in outlying industry, James Stewart fills his vital place in school administration.

Encouraging and guiding those with superior academic achievements, Wallace Potter directs Special Education. His duties center around those with special problems and those attaining honor as outstanding pupils.

Helping Evening School pupils plan their programs to meet requirements and achieve goals is the job of James Borshoff, director of guidance for Evening School Division.

In hot, sunny weather the number of discipline problems rises. But, rain, snow or sun, Donald Q. Daily, dean of boys, and his assistants are always ready to perform their many duties.

Counseling girls, sponsoring extra-curricular activities and providing student messengers may seem a tiring job. But Mrs. Martha Turpin, dean of girls and Mrs. Barbara Dearing, her assistant, enjoy this work and think it's a great way to help teenagers find their place in a varied and busy society.

Deans, assistants counsel pupils with problems

Acting as assistant dean of boys, Mahlon Carlock counsels in the areas of discipline and attendance. Much of his day is spent interviewing pupils and parents.

Assisting the dean of boys in his daily tasks are counselors for attendance and discipline matters. Seated: Rudolph Wilson. Standing: Ernest Medcalfe, A. Ray Reed, Howard Catt.

Tech's nurses maintain a healthy atmosphere on campus as they administer first aid for incidental cuts and bruises. Nurses are Mesdames Betty Brodhecker, Shirley Lundgren and Blanche Williams.

Assistant counselors in the office of the dean of girls, Judith McBride, Mrs. Dorothy Stout and Sharon Parrett consult daily with Tech girls on personal and school problems.

Ready to help inquiring pupils, Mrs. Dorothy Newcomer, Marjorie Schoch, head librarian, and Mary K. Garst provide information for special reports and research papers. They also give guidance in outside reading.

Howard Caskey, director of the Neighborhood Youth Corps, consults non-profit organizations about student employment.

Ernest Cline and Floyd Tobrocke, junior high school counselors, advise oncoming freshmen about courses and personal adjustment to campus life.

Techites worked hard and polished a few apples as they fulfilled their primary objective—getting an education.

Studying for that all-essential piece of parchment, these pupils followed four different courses to prepare for their futures.

College prep pupils took advantage of Tech's academic offerings with trig and French IX while future secretaries and businessmen studied clerical practice and computer programming.

Specializing in welding or cabinet making, Tech's vocational pupils mastered skills for their future occupations. A diploma and a chance for a higher education awaited each pupil at the end of his four years of study.

Academics

Films, tapes, skits liven English instruction

Students find the quiet of the Tech library a good spot for researching with an English class or on their own. They make full use of the many facilities offered including the 135 different magazines.

Losing self-consciousness before an audience and having fun at the same time, Nate Appleton impersonates Red Riding Hood, and teacher Mrs. Arvilla Bennett portrays the mother in a classroom skit.

Tech English pupils discussed and wrote about topics of current interest and also found outlet for their energies through dramatics, speech, and debate competition and work with the Arsenal Cannon.

On Honor Day the English Department presented the Esther Fay Shover Medal for outstanding creative expression. A plaque with names of all past winners is in the Esther Fay Shover Room where teachers showed 83 films this year. The room was named to honor Tech's first English Department head.

On a windy Saturday morning Tech teachers and pupils turn out for a special showing of Gone With the Wind. Seen here entering the theatre are Mr. Tom Danheiser, Vicki Raker, Vickie Kendall, Linda Cook, and Richard Swan.

To add variety to everyday classroom procedures, this English class is watching the original screen enactment of Romeo and Juliet in the Esther Fay Shover Room.

In a tape prepared by the English IIIg class, Mike Trittipio states his ideas on Tech's public image while Bob Kares, Kyle Fort, Ken Mullis, Karen Darland, Chester Whitaker, Pat Finnigan, Andy Taylor, and Mary Reneau await their turn.

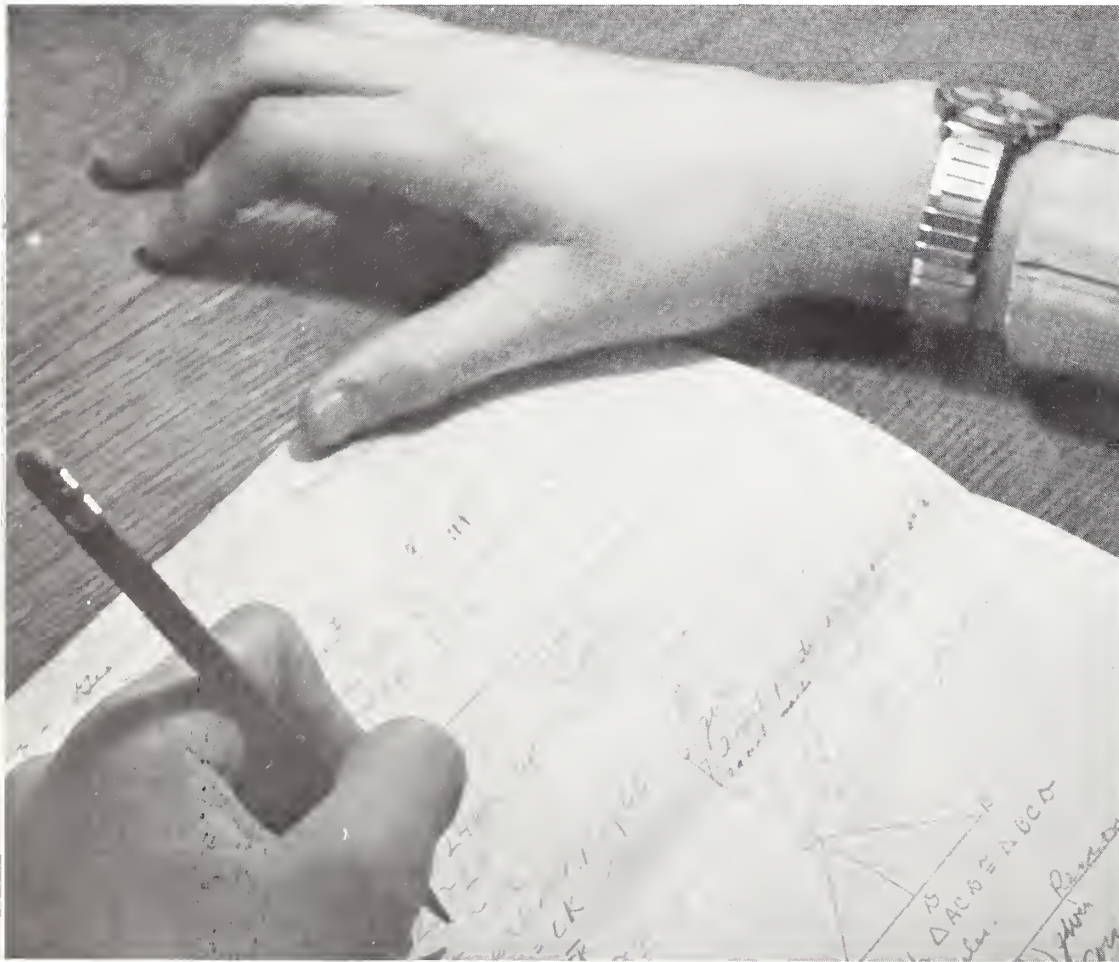

From Bogota, Columbia comes Luis Hernandez, enrolled in Miss Bettis' English class and learning the strange language with the help of classmates. Luis is shown with Vernon Seats and John Hess.

Math Department—First Row: Harold S. Brown, Mesdames Christine D. Bennett, Madora D. Walker, Dale W. Sare, Harry Smith, Mrs. Gwen Jones, Richard Glover, Mrs. Evaleen B. Jones. Wheeler, William M. Gentry, Betty Lea Mansfield. Third Row: Richard O. Shock, Mrs. Marilyn L. Hoffman, Arnold W. Lehman, John H. Stoeckinger, department head; Ronald G. Ireland, Rowland Leverenz, Maurice A. Kriese, Pascal Abel.

Homework! Homework! The path to an "A" in math is paved with more than good intentions. In the course of a semester dozens of written papers must be prepared and handed in as this geometry pupil is learning. So goes the training in achieving logical thinking.

Using every device known to man, Mr. Corbin drills math into the minds of his students. Occasionally the seriousness of class is broken while Mr. Corbin shows the humorous side of math in Algebra III class.

Mr. Wheeler's Geometry II class concentrates on a difficult quadrilateral problem. Having failed to solve it at home, students watch the board as Mr. Wheeler rescues them from their predicament.

Below: George E. Edwards and Kathy Holt probably would agree that the new method of correcting exercises in Basic Math I, with the help of adding machines, is a lot more interesting and fun.

Computers, astronomy offer math challenge

One of the modern trends in the Math Department was the possibility of a course in computer technology beginning in spring '68. Interested pupils would have the opportunity to learn computer language and techniques. Future opportunities centered around the possibility of working with the computers at Mallory Technical Institute.

In step with many space-age advancements, astronomy was again offered as a spring course. Requirements were one year of math and enrollment in an English IV class. A descriptive and cultural course, astronomy dealt with the sun, planets, and stars and seasonal changes with related mathematical applications as class ability permitted.

Foreign Language Department—Front Row: Mrs. Serine Fine, Miss Rita Sheridan, department head; Mesdames Mary Bedell, Virginia

Zimmerman. Second Row: Mrs. Maria Lagadon, Constance Harvey, Mesdames Carol Platt, Suzanne Underwood.

I.U. program encourages language students

A department-sponsored foreign language honor day highlighted the efforts of students enrolled in French, German, Spanish, and Latin. Presented in May, the program awarded certificates to language pupils receiving "A" finals for two consecutive semesters.

Another high point for the department was preparation for the Indiana University Honors Program in Foreign Languages. Eligible students conferred with teachers, listened to tapes and records and practiced fluency in readiness for the December 16 test. After the test, came personal interviews and final decisions. Those chosen for the two-month trip pledged to speak absolutely no English while living and studying abroad.

Activities in the classrooms were many and varied. Concentrating on accuracy, fluency, and pronunciation, language instructors planned grammar drills, impromptu talks, listening comprehension, and oral testing.

Classes stage mock legislative sessions

Maintaining an active pace, the Social Studies Department engineered such classroom activities as debates, mock elections and the first session of a Tech Congress. Responsible for the "Congress in Action" theme was Mr. Kanouse. Four United States Government classes were divided into two miniature replicas of Congress. Each class was designated as a House of Representatives or a Senate. Members chose to represent their own political parties.

All steps taken in the actual Congress were enacted in a Tech classroom. Bills were introduced, sent to committees, had their second and third readings and were brought to a vote. All bills passing Congress were sent to Mr. Siedlecki who acted as commander-in-chief for these legislative sessions.

Students in Mr. Ebert Smith's United States History IIg class watch Julia Boone as she traces the routes taken by ships navigating from the east coast of the United States to Vera Cruz during the Mexican War. Onlookers are Carl Curtis, Gary Adams, Pam Baker, Ruth Creech, and James Johnson. The group of 13 is the smallest United States history class at Tech.

Stuart Lawrence, as the Vice-President of the United States, presides over the mock Senate in his government class with Cornelia Oates keeping careful records of the meeting.

Pupils learned to type their own blood in Zoology II this year. They dissected both vertebrates and invertebrates.

Springtime found botany pupils walking about the campus examining the trees and flowers. Each student was to be able to identify the different species of trees, by twigs, by leaves, and by bark. Also they were to be able to identify the different flowers.

The Biology III class studied bacteriology and microtechniques. Biology IV students began the study of the higher vertebrate animals, in contrast to the generalized study of Biology I and II classes.

Physical science five-year-plan succeeds

Everything goes! Total renovation of outdated physical science rooms was completed in September, 1967. Electrical, gas, air, and water systems were completely renovated; in addition, floors were relaid, and new tables installed. Room 243 was the last of six labs to be redone since the program first got under way five years ago.

Also new in the science set is a single concept film projector. Including lessons in filtration, the three-minute projections explain simple concepts in laboratory procedure. A library of such films is anticipated.

Slide rules for use by students, a critical analytical balance, and a Michelson interferometer were added to the inventory of scientific instruments. And, of course, students dread the safety goggles whose required use has been added to lab rules.

Physics students Roy Reynolds and Steven Adair (foreground), Douglas Hamilton, Jerry Birck, Bradley Rotert, Terry Loux, and Larry Auble time reactions in an experiment. Students are required to keep accurate notes for their reports.

Allen Glover and Harry Benson abide by the much disliked law of wearing goggles in all science laboratories.

Chemistry I students Barbara Ogle and Scott Smith familiarize themselves with new equipment and techniques they will encounter in their study. Such expressions as "flask" and "Bunsen burner" will become part of their everyday vocabulary.

Right: Chemistry students work in partners preparing a titration. Rex Marshall cleans the buret with distilled water while Karen Spaw steadies the equipment. Good teamwork!

Pupils prepare for careers, homemaking

The Home Economics department offered multiple opportunities for both boys and girls. Readyng themselves for futures as homemakers, girls in foods classes created everything from main dish casseroles to Christmas cookies.

Commercial foods classes benefited boys and girls interested in careers. For seniors, the family living classes dealt with the social, economic, and personal problems arising in married life. Youthful beauticians practiced the art of giving shampoos, haircuts, hairstyles, and facials in cosmetology. Housing and management classes presented ideas for interior decorating.

In child care classes, girls received a preview of child-mother relationships. Future nurses were given an idea of hospital situations and ways to cope with them.

Basting, hemlines, seams, darts, and linings were terms familiar to those participating in clothing classes. Coats, slacks, dresses, skirts, and formal gowns composed many of their projects. The highlight of the year was the style show in which the best creations were modeled by their makers.

Sheryl Blackwell, in a commercial foods class, measures ingredients for those great Tech brownies.

Computers, keypunch update Business Ed.

Over half of the pupils enrolled at Tech elect business education courses. The 2700 pupils enrolled in the department use a total of 325 pieces of equipment, including manual and electric typewriters, computers, adding machines, tape recorders, keypunch machines, interpreters, verifiers, and listers.

From these classes, pupils may enter industry and command well-paid jobs as secretaries, accountants, computer and keypunch operators, typists, and bookkeepers.

Several advanced Tech pupils travelled daily to Mallory's to study computer programming, while pupils from other schools studied keypunch and tab equipment using Tech facilities.

The department awards certificates each semester for excellence in shorthand and typing, and annually presents the F. H. Gillespie Award to the outstanding senior in the department.

Both instrumental and vocal groups fulfilled requested engagements, spreading the Christmas spirit through music. Telecast in color, the tuneful Techoir made its contribution to the joyful holiday season on Christmas Day over WISH-TV. Also observing the Yule season, the group cut and sponsored sale of its traditional Christmas record and sang at the annual Christmas assembly.

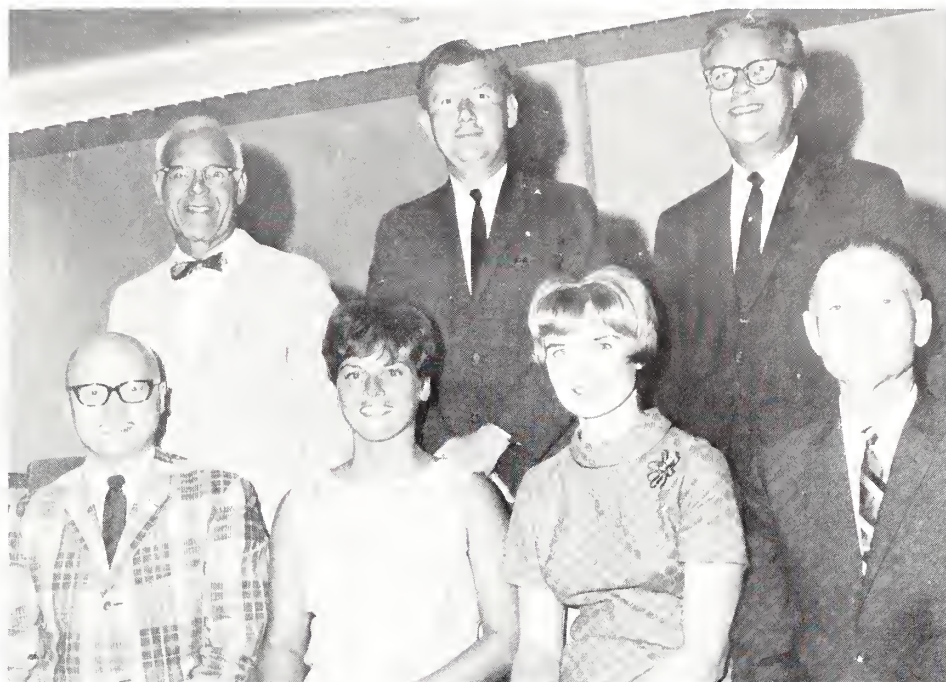

Painting, sculpting, making jewelry and hooked rugs were projects undertaken by ambitious art students. December '67 brought numerous entries in the "Mail Early" poster contest, and a month later entries vied for recognition in the Scholastic Art Awards at L. S. Ayres.

Physical education stresses health, fitness

Tech High School in cooperation with the Medical Services of Marion County administered a tuberculin skin test for all students new to Tech from outside Marion county, all health classes, and all students working in the cafeteria. The purpose of the test was to distinguish those persons infected with tubercle bacilli. These tests were conducted to comply with a law enacted in August, 1967. All high schools conducted a similar test.

Learning the functions of body organs and their proper care was the primary objective of health education classes. Plastic replicas of essential systems, diagrams, and outlines aided pupils. Additional aids in classroom work were films and talks given by professional people. "Highball Highway" informed pupils of the disasters caused by alcoholism, while other movies told of drug addiction and tuberculosis.

One third of the physical education classes participated in a first-aid course every six weeks. Those pupils passing the course were awarded standard certificates.

Printers,

Gaining recognition for educational facilities, teachers, and equipment, the Tech Drafting Department offered many opportunities for interested students. Eligible pupils were invited to participate in mechanical drawing contests. Judging was done by professional draftsmen and certificates were awarded to entries achieving excellence.

Printing proof sheets so Cannon editors can find and correct any errors was the task of pupils like Steve Grable, using the new Vandercook proof press.

Drafting Department—Front Row: Stephen Behlmer, Scott Houldson, Samuel Skomp, Burney Jackson. Second Row: Floyd Tobroke, Carl Meditch, John Williams, Harold Elliott, department head.

Drawing blueprints for homes, planning housing developments and constructing them in miniature taught pupils the basics of architectural drafting. Bent over the drawing boards in Mr. Meditch's class are Mike Brummett and Maurice Heitzman.

*Arsenal Cannon weeklies are printed on one sheet and here Darrell Underwood demonstrates the Seybold Citation paper cutter, that divides the two and prepares the Cannons to be folded and distributed.*

draftsmen utilize unique equipment

Tech Printing Department acquired eight new pieces of equipment this year. These include a new Miehle offset press, a Seybold Citation paper cutter, a Durst color separation enlarger, a Baum folder, a new Miehle letterpress, an Original Heidelberg press, a Ludlow linotype headsetter and a Vandercook proof press.

The equipment will be used by all divisions of the Print Shop: offset, letterpress, linotype and composition.

With this equipment, pupils will be able to get more technical knowledge of printing and a better start in the trade after graduation.

Printing Department—Ralph Clark, Robert Smith, Samuel Skomp, Harold Deem, Floyd Billington, Clyde S. Armel, department head.

New equipment purchased in the summer of 1967 included this Miehle offset press. Shown Printing the Cannon weekly on the $30,000 press are Roselyn Pillow, James Austin and William Plummer.

Would you believe . . . a multi-colored hot-rod?

Paul Harvey of Harvey Ford Agency, a Tech graduate, presents a Ford F-100 to Mr. Longshore and Mr. Dudkowski. Shown are B. B. Harding, assistant district Ford manager; Morris Gardner, vice-president; Mr. Longshore, Lewis Marshall, director of shop activities; Mr. Harvey and Mr. Dudkowski.

Consulting each other on one of their projects in auto trades, William Harris, Howard Gearlds, and Robert McKinney repair an automobile engine in Mr. Tremp's auto mechanics class. Two unidentified classmates assist their efforts.

The query, "Is that a hot rod?" is voiced by several astonished visitors to the Tech Auto Shop. Actually a Ford F-100 pick-up chassis, this piece of equipment is color-coded for visual teaching.

The Ford Motor Company annually has donated instructional manuals on new cars for student use. This year their gift was the machine itself. No pupils are tempted to take a ride, however, as it has no ignition system.

Besides a complete course of study in all phases of auto mechanics, the department offers training to some 800 pupils in auto body and aviation.

Some pupils are preparing for advanced courses in engineering colleges; others are looking forward to vocations in the auto trades; still others are present or potential car owners who hope to do their own repair and maintenance work.

Pupils in aviation classes recondition an airplane at a cost of $350. At work on such a project are Phillip Lynch and Carl P. Grigsby.

Mr. Beall's first-hour carpentry class is not all serious work. This year's specialties included building little red barns and dog houses. Charlie Brown and Snoopy apparently feel at home during a recent visit.

Building Trades class creates steps, red barns, dog houses

Buzzing, sanding, slapping of cement, varnishing, and steaming of wallpaper are some of the sounds made by students working and learning in the Building Trades Department.

Here boys enroll in a variety of classes to prepare for trades as plumbers, electricians, painters and decorators, or masons.

Equipment used in different classes are leads, trowels, spray painters, sanders—hand and power tools.

A boy entering a plumbing, masonry, or electrical trades class automatically has six weeks' experience in each trade. This enables him to see which courses he would like to continue as a vocation.

A summer paintshop program offered employment for future painters. Jobs painting the interior and exterior of private homes kept them busy. Also scheduled was a project refinishing chairs for local schools.

James Jackson learns pipe threading, an interesting skill which may help him in a future vocation. Such activities become daily routine in plumbing classes.

Right: As a class project, L. Jonathon Holmes and Gary Smith build forms into which cement will be poured to form stepping stones.

Leaky plumbing? Call an expert who knows how to caulk a soil pipe. Jeffery Davis gets his specialized training in daily class.

Metal Trades Department acquires hydraulic press

This year has proved to be one of the most successful for the Metal Trades Department. Each of the five distinct trades made great advancements in new equipments.

Machine shop received a hydraulic press and contour band saw, filing and polishing machine.

Foundry shop gained a new drill press.

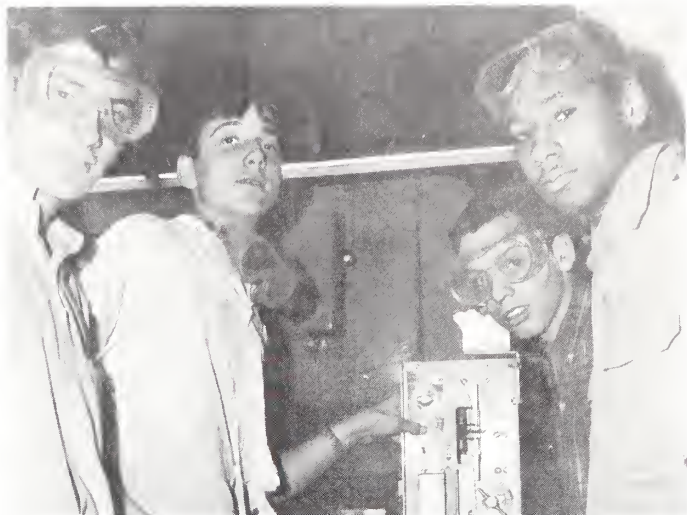

A completely automatic, self-timing, air operated spot welder was the latest thing in sheet metal classes.

Two new arc welders were given to welding shop and five wood lathes to pattern-making.

Harry Price and Steve Bucher check the controls of a large scale oscilloscope as part of their class work.

Charles Brasher concentrates as he utilizes skills learned in class in repairing his radio. Classes in the department take repair jobs for school personnel and the general public and usually have a waiting list of work.

Electrical shops train technical experts

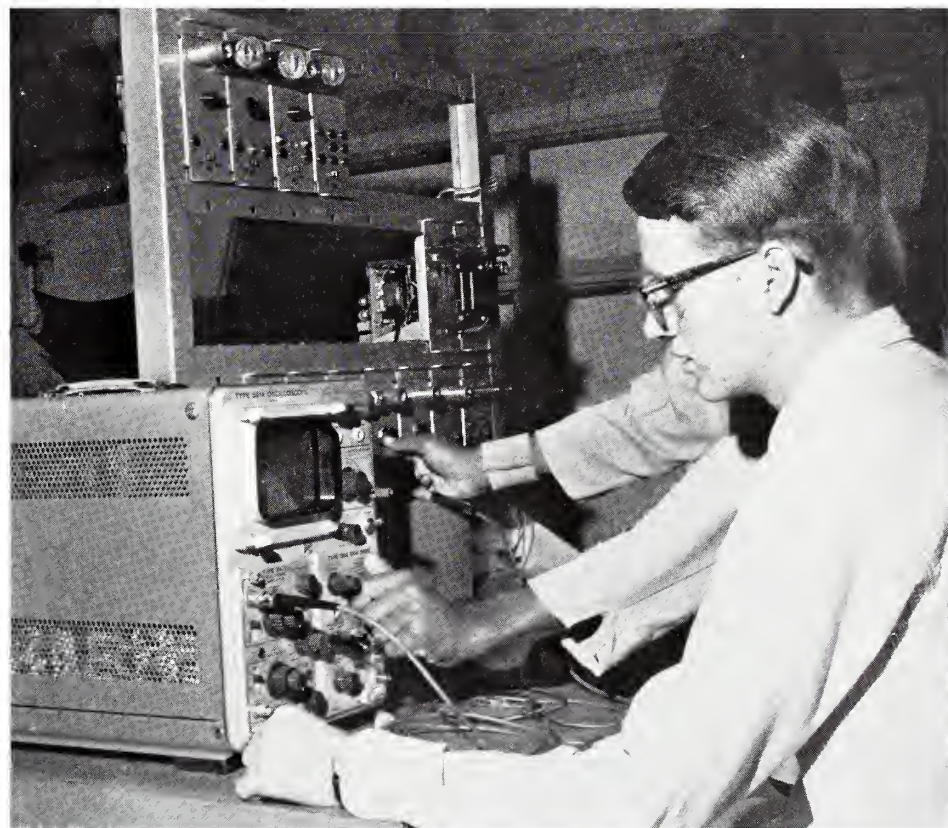

On the day when the electric tooth brush has a short circuit, the can opener blows a fuse, or the air conditioner leaves the house muggy, call an appliance repairman for service. It is very likely he may be a Tech graduate and former pupil of the Electrical Trades Department. Students can take courses in electricity, electronics, electrical maintenance, and refrigeration, radio, and TV service.

Every day they may be seen working in the department with modern equipment in a maze of wires, dials, fuses and screens. Making intelligent use of these is the initial step to success in this occupational field.

Conducting tests for voltage and resistance on motor generator sets, Denzil Shoffner, Fred Parish and Melvin Johnson gain the basic knowledge needed to become skilled electricians.

Absorbed in a refrigeration project, classroom workers learn a trade. They are James Hicks, Joseph Hallins, Ernie Jones, Bruce Canedy, and Randy Walker.

The intricacies of complicated electronic equipment becomes meaningful with textbook instruction, classwork and laboratory procedures. Winfred Turner and Lemul Stigler use classroom procedure in the operation of an oscilloscope to measure the fluctuation of voltage. The fluctuation would be a wave on the fluorescent screen.

Marching, drilling cadets learn discipline

Based in the one-hundred year old Barracks, the Reserve Officers Training Corps prepared Tech boys for future military service, as the cadets marched, drilled and fired through the Federal Inspection, the Veterans' Day Parade and numerous drill team and rifle team meets.

Over 400 pupils were enrolled in the half-credit course and were divided into two battalions with three companies each. Cadets and sponsors sought promotions for academic excellence, discipline, character, neatness and service.

Sponsors and cadet officers planned the annual Military Ball, held this year on December 16.

Awards abounded in the ROTC department as the Tech unit took second place for the SAI best unit trophy and tied for second place in the Veterans' Day Parade.

On a cold, rainy Saturday, Tech's Color Guard marches in the Veterans' Day parade: C/Sgt. Dan Kurbursky, C/Sfc Jerry Steffey, C/Sgt. Jerry Brewster, C/Sgt. Joe Jones.

Below: Appropriately the home of the Tech ROTC unit, the Barracks, now in its second century, once housed Civil War soldiers.

Lt. Stephen W. Hooker, C/Sfc. Jerry L. Steffey. Second Row: C/2nd Lt. Harold Russell, C/Sgt. Johnny Harper, C/2nd Lt. Ronald Fagan.

Jumping for joy as graduation neared, senior Techites inwardly reflected on the importance of their senior year.
The last year, with senior privileges,
special honors,
and all the final events of the Class of '68,
climaxed the most memorable period of a Techite's life.

It was a four-year metamorphosis from a shy, scrawny freshman to a young adult, ready to make his own independent mark in the world.

Club meetings, basketball games,
the first formal dance,
all-school assemblies
provided the memories of life at Tech.
Tech seniors looked forward to the freedom signaled by that piece of parchment, meanwhile realizing the responsibilities
as wives, husbands, parents, soldiers, businessmen, college students, and tradesmen that faced them after June 4—
Commencement for the Class of '68.

Senior Dan Reneau makes a study of the Moibus strip. Get paper, paste and a pair of scissors and try it step by step. First Dan takes a thin piece of paper and gives it a one-half twist.

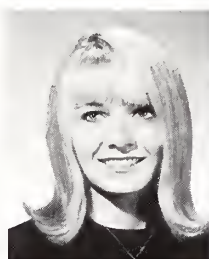

Second step in the experiment is joining the two ends, making a loop with one and only one side.

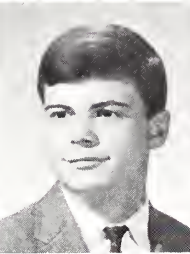

Proving that the loop does, indeed have only one surface, Dan draws one continuous line running down the middle of the paper on "both" sides. He never picked up the pencil, but the line goes completely around the loop and both ends meet.

Wrong! Instead, the loop grows to twice its original size with a full twist in it. So—Don't be discouraged if you didn't figure that out. His next move is to cut the new loop right down the middle. You've caught on now. I will be one very big loop with two twists in it. Do you think so?

You're wrong again! Viola! It's two loops, each the size of the loops in the second stage of the experiment, but this time twined together like links of a chain.

Even Lucy knows the importance of advertising in the American economy, and Tech's sponsors know the importance of advertising to the teen-aged market. Teen-agers spend over $22 billion a year, half of which they earn themselves. They spend $300 million on records and make up 50% of the consumers; $180 million on greeting cards and are 25% of the market. While teen-aged girls are only 12% of the American female population, they spend over half a billion annually on cosmetics. Girls aren't the only big spenders; teen-aged boys dole out over $16 billion annually. The majority of all movie-goers are teen-agers, and half a million have invested in the stock market. Each year one in 25 buys a new car while one in four invests in a used one. Yes, each teen-ager is an important buying force.

Even at night, business refuses to stop as nightlife in the downtown business district of Indianapolis beacons transaction.

Lee Ann Eads and Eleanor Stewart keep their rain gear at a minimum, a happy arrangement as long as the precipitation also stays that way.

Saddle oxfords? You're kidding," giggles Candy Dobkins. Her reaction is typical as her classmates tease Bev Funke about her new shoes.

Appreciation is . . .

March 15, 1968--the date which seemed so distant 11 months and 192 pages ago came sooner than expected.

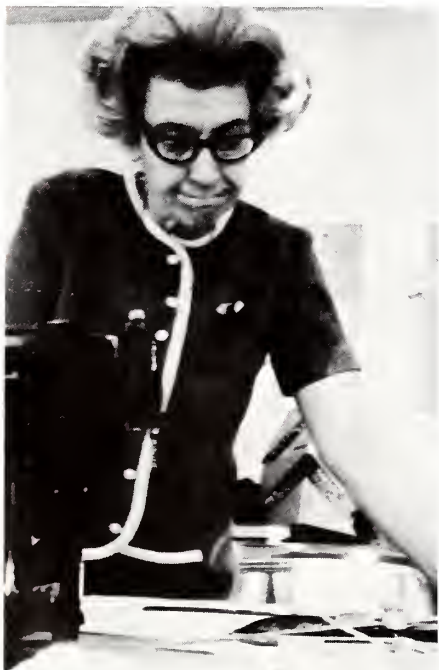

Suddenly, it's time to say good-bye to Charlie Brown and all our new-found friends.

At the end of a year of Saturday press conferences, 7:00 evening work sessions, missed deadlines, and missing pictures, we, the 1968 Cannon staff, owe our thanks to all who have helped us. First and most important is Charles Schulz, without whose creative genius we'd have never met the Peanuts gang. We are also indebted to Newsfoto Publishing and its representative Richard Kennard; Kenneth Puckett for his financial assistance; our advertisers for their important support; our professional photographer Max Galloway; Root Studios for many campus shots; Larry Miller for his sports pictures; William Wheeler for basketball team pictures, and the U.S. Secret Service for "okaying" our use of the picture on page 158.

Typing Form 19's, distributing Cannons, handling subscription campaigns, and generally keeping the disorganized Cannon Office in order, Mrs. R. was friend, confidante, and mother to many kiddies.

Identified by their tiny "peanuts" pins, roll room agents began selling the yearbook in November. The top ten salesmen of the 1968 Arsenal Cannon yearbook were (bottom) Betty VanDyne, Sandra Fleetwood, Bonnie Dalton, Denise Hickerson, Diana Lowe, and (below) Joyce Goodwin, Linda Russell, and Sue Meigs, Ronald Bradley, Roy Smith.

Work with Cannon staffers five periods a day, Saturdays, Sundays, and afternoons can be a little trying even for a devoted sponsor.

The simple, uncomplicated, important philosophy of Peanuts fascinated readers around the world. "Happiness is . . ." kite-eating trees, baseball games, the Red Baron showed Titans that each had a little Charlie Brown, Lucy and Linus in him.

Miss Linda Herman
Arsenal Technical High School
1500 East Michigan Street
Indianapolis 7, Indiana 46207

Dear Miss Herman:

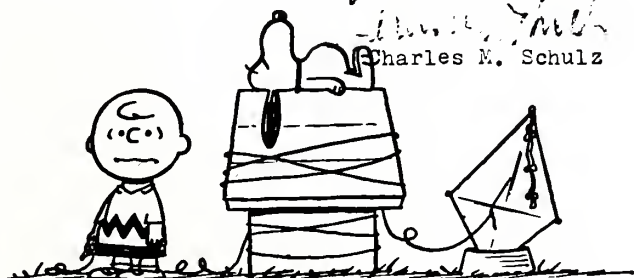

You certainly may have permission to use any of the Peanuts characters you wish in your forthcoming yearbook.

I am flattered that you should wish to do so.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely yours,

Charles M. Schulz

Lost in thought, Linda Herman ponders another editorial decision in a frantic pre-deadline scramble for finished, and proofread, copy.

Good grief
Good-bye
